Hospital

a hospital must seek accreditation. It is a decision voluntarily made by the individual hospital but because hospitals are conscientiously working to improve the quality of their services, more and more institutions are seeking to earn accreditation.

"When a hospital desires accreditation," Clarke explained, "it requests the Joint Commission to make a personal survey and compare its activities with Commission standards for an accredited hospital. This survey is made by a physician thoroughly trained in all phases of hospital work and the standards set up by the Joint Commission are those that medical and hospital authorities consider necessary to insure high quality medical care. They call for application of certain basic principles of organization and administration for efficient patient care and require that the hospital meet certain standards in its physical facilities."

"And finally," Clarke concluded, "a hospital that has been surveyed and granted the Certificate of Accreditation gives the patient and the community these assurances: A 'safe and sound' building with maximum precautions taken against fire and explosion and with the provision of emergency lighting in case of power failure; good facilities and equipment to diagnose and effectively treat patient's illness; special hospital services such as a dietary department which, under strict supervision, prepares food under the most sanitary conditions to meet each patient's individual requirements; a qualified medical staff; a well-trained nursing staff with adequate hospital personnel; a reasonable good body; good records and a doctor's own review of medical staff."

"The building will be reduced as of the coming week from 11.00 for a double room to 8.00, and from 7.00 for a single room to 5.00. The rent is being reduced because Mr. Miners has agreed that his tenants are not receiving full service for the existing facilities. Because the building is almost beyond repair, Miners has plans to destroy the building as soon as his tenants find more suitable quarters to move to."

The Miners are willing to work with the Housing Committee to do whatever is necessary to insure the health, safety, and happiness of their tenants. They wish to make clear, however, that they expect and hope that their tenants will meet their responsibilities as well and do whatever is possible to make their apartments and their buildings clean, safe, and healthy to live in.

The Housing Committee hopes to continue working with the Miners to build a better community through better housing and the development of good tenant-landlord relations.

The Image Maker

OOPS THERE GOES OUR IMAGE AGAIN...

Mirror mirror on the wall which is the fairest town of all? Television exposes and recent articles in both the Florida and out of state press say that it's certainly not Belle Glade. Why then when we drive the streets of our city do we fail to see what our out of town critics see, is it because like looking in a mirror we only see what we want to see. There are no problems in Belle Glade greater than our inability to see them. Perhaps it would do us all good to look at our city with the critical eye of the outsider, for like those people who work constantly in the dark, it soon becomes difficult to see the light.

Easter

Easter and the official entry of Spring this year fall within a few days of each other. Although Spring always arrives about the 21st of March, the date of Easter varies over a wide range. This year it is the 26th of March. In case you need reminding, Easter comes on the first Sunday after the date of the first full moon that occurs on or after March 21. Since it celebrates the resurrection of Jesus Christ, it is observed in a pleasant and rather genteel manner—the Easter egg hunt and the Easter bonnet. Countless millions of children will pursue the annual treasure hunt for the gifts of the Easter bunny in brightly colored, easy-to-see baskets—tinted eggs, chocolate rabbits and gumdrops. The excited cries of childish discovery ringing on the spring air are one of the more pleasant aspects of Easter.

Much of the country has endured a harsh winter. Let's hope that Spring arrives with clear skies and that the sun shines on Easter for the benefit of the children and the Easter bonnets.

Cheating Ourselves

A question the American public should ask itself is "When is a limit not a limit?" The answer, of course, is when Congress sets a so-called ceiling on the national debt. Our national lawmakers recently raised the debt ceiling by $6 billion, to a total of $336 billion. Yet only the very innocent believe that spending in Washington won't soon knock a hole in that ceiling. In setting debt limits which turn out to be meaningless, the U. S. makes a laughing stock of itself among thoughtful students of monetary and fiscal matters. One such student is Harry Schultz, author of the "Schultz Letter" on international finance. In a recent letter from London, Mr. Schultz reported that Prof. Albert Hahn, the Swiss economist, pointed out that a debt ceiling "can't be raised and still be called a ceiling." (And yet Congress has raised the "debt ceiling" in this country time and time again since the end of the Second World War. Actually, we have no ceiling—the sky is the limit.)

The periodic upward revision of the debt ceiling is a manifestation of intellectual and moral weakness insofar as our nation's financial affairs are concerned. Branch officials who propose raising the ceiling, and the Congressmen who bow to their wishes, surely know in their hearts that such actions are irresponsible. The individual officials are irresponsible. The fool himself into believing that he can dispense with debt limitations insofar as his personal finances are concerned. He knows that there is a real and absolute limit on the debt he can handle. Thus, that he may be able to afford to buy a $25,000 house, but that a $100,000 house is completely out of range.

We know what happens to an individual who borrows more than he can repay, or who lives on a scale that is beyond his means. He ends up in a terrible financial tangle, his credit ruined and his family in sad shape. The individual Congressman knows this full well. Yet a majority of Congress regularly votes to raise the debt limit. What they are doing when they vote in this manner is revealing a willingness to handle their country's financial affairs in an irresponsible manner—a manner in which they would not handle their personal affairs. What is it that makes officials and lawmakers imagine that a nation is exempt from rules concerning debt which are applicable to individuals? What is our nation, after all, but the sum total of the individuals living in this land? And what is wrong for the lone citizen who is wrong for the citizenry as a whole? For a man of moderate means to buy a $100,000 house won't make him rich. It won't make his wife or children happy. As a matter of fact, it will impoverish him and cause unhappiness for his family. This truth holds true for our national family. Spending billions of dollars on foreign and domestic giveaways—billions the country can't afford to spend—is comparable with purchasing a mansion one can't pay for.

Uncle Dan From Doolie Says:

Dear Mister Editor: The fellows at the country store Saturday night was getting what you might call literary encyclopedias. They were discussing all these things that nowadays was put in the fine print. What brings this item up was Zeke Grubb reporting he had saw where we now got two states, California and New Jersey, that was making small appliance companies put the "take away" clauses in a big print as the "fine print" and small print taken away. As you know, Mister Editor, there was a heap of truth in that old saying the "big print" and the "small print" taken away. Well, said Zeke, it has been ruled in New Jersey that it was times when ignorance was a excuse in law and one of them times was when a insurance company put the "guarantee" items in big print at the top of the page and hid the "take away" in fine print down at the bottom under some queer punctuation marks like commas and semicolons. Personal, I ain't acquainted with semicolons, but that's what Zeke claimed the judge said. Ed Doolie was of the opinion that the whole War on Poverty was wrote entire in the fine print. He claimed it was required in the Great Society announcements from Washington to put the "give" in big headlines and the cost to the taxpayers in fine print at the bottom. Per instant, said Ed, he had saw where the Office of Economic Opportunity was setting up a program in the state of South Carolina to give free legal advice to the poor folks. This, allowed Ed, was the big print, but down at the bottom it said the program would cost $163,000. He reported this was in medium print, and down under the bottom of the bottom it said the director of this office would get $15,000 a year, his salary would be $12,000 a year, two lawyers $9,600 a piece, and two investigators $7,200 each. All in the fine print. Incidental, Mister Editor, one of the fellows—and I ain't going to mention his name—allowed as how you newspaper folks was getting the fine print over him. He said he reported that 25 year ago the Great Society was defended the news with his bifocals on top today it was getting so a fellow was going to have to have a magnifying glass to read anything but the headlines. Clem Webster of the Great Society was defending the newspapers, claimed space was getting to be a problem here could set down and read the paper that run the store sold sailfish out of a bucket by the pound. Now they sell 'em by the ounce and got 'em packed so tight in the can you got to eat the can and all to get yore money's worth. Yours truly, Uncle Dan.

ASK US, 'CAUSE, WE KNOW IT ALL!

What is the school policy regarding excused and unexcused absences? In Florida, the state law declares that absences due to the student's illness or illness in the immediate family are excused; all other absences are unexcused. Here in BGHS, this unexcused rule is applied except in cases where legitimate excuses are offered. In these cases, it is best (if possible) to have the absence okay ed before the date of the absence (doctor appointments, dentist appointments, or necessary out-of-town trips).

The student has the two following school days after the absence in which to submit his excuse to the STUDENT OFFICE. Excuses should be signed by the parent and should state SPECIFICALLY the cause of the absence. If the excuse is not turned in within the allotted two days, the absence is determined unexcused; no matter what the reason for the absence.

If a student's absence is judged excused, he is allowed three days (the suggested time) to make up the work he missed. If the absence is unexcused, the student is not permitted to make up the work that he missed. He does not receive any grade whatsoever for any tests missed, but three points are deducted from the student's daily average in every class for each unexcused absence in it.

BGHS offers a special privilege to all seniors. Each senior is permitted an excused absence of one day to visit a college campus within the state of Florida. A two-day excused absence is allowed for a visit to any out-of-state college campus. This privilege was granted to help each senior make the best possible college choice.

"ART IN FASHION"

PRESENTED BY FHA

Bright green, orange, yellow and red transformed the cafeteria into a spring setting for the "Art in Fashion" show sponsored by the Future Homemakers of America Club, last Thursday night. Miss Geraldine Robins of the Simplicity Pattern Company was the commentator. She selected twenty ensembles and accessories that were modeled by Belle Glade girls. The fashions presented were the latest styles. The dresses modeled were designed and sewn by the Simplicity Pattern Company.

FHA

School, beach, casual, and after-five fashions shared the spotlight.

The audience of about 150 warmly received two striking outfits. The first was a double-breasted wool suit costume. It was a $25 copy of a $300 Paris original. Another eye-catcher was a full length white pique gown with a cut-away halter neckline.

Kill this pellitory weed in sugar cane. Use Atrazine. Here's how:

When you see pellitory weed starting to grow, apply Atrazine 80W herbicide, plus a little surfactant. You'll clean out infestations of this winter annual fast and effectively without hurting cane.

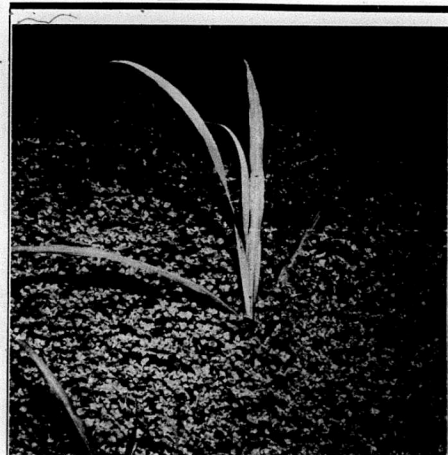

Atrazine is safe to sugar cane. It will not injure your crop when you apply it as directed on the label. And since it's non-volatile, there's no danger of drift to adjacent, sensitive crops.

pellitory from interfering with sugar cane tillering. Also, Atrazine helps make soil moisture and nutrients available for your cane, and not for pellitory weed.

So plan now to grow the maximum tonnage of sugar cane from each acre you plant this season. Just use Atrazine to control pellitory weed this winter.

A New Look At Our Mathematics Program

Recent innovations in the Mathematics Program have produced tremendous changes in student attitudes toward mathematics. They are before because of limited student and teaching supplies.

Through the Title Three Mathematics Project, many student apprehensions have been completely dispelled, and now students look forward to this course with great anticipation.

Such is true of the instructional unit being given now in the use of calculators. The junior high school students who recently completed this unit are still elated over their accomplishments and are voicing their sentiments to the senior high school students who are just beginning this unit.

Indeed, we are grateful to Mr. Wayne Jacobs, project coordinator for the Glades area, for his untiring efforts in making their sentiments to the basic mathematics students. Also, we salute our own madames Maynor and Whitfield, who are the teachers participating in this project and are working so diligently with us. We are proud to welcome Mr. John Williams, who is currently interning under Mrs. Whitfield's supervision.

Picasso's... Picasso?

Not really. These students are preparing a college for the annual art exhibit sponsored by the art department. They are Donald Grant and Mary Miller. The exhibit will be held Thursday, March 23rd in the Gym. The work shows will be the work of students enrolled in Art classes at LSH and will include work in the following categories:

Graphics, Drawing and Painting, Crafts, Commercial Art, Ceramics and Poster Designs.

This year the exhibit will be dedicated to a person who has given outstanding assistance in helping the Art Program and Lake Shore High. This is the first in the history of our school. The honor this year goes to Mr. Orie Walker, our assistant principal, who has been extremely instrumental in helping to secure basic supplies needed for carrying out a successful art program. Our sincere thanks to Mr. Walker.

The exhibit will be on display all day Thursday, March 24th 8 o'clock A. M. until 3:30 p. m.

Campus Highlights

The Future Teachers of America are getting in the swing again. They are planning a variety talent show on April 6. The deadline for the event is March 31. Prizes will be awarded.

LSH BOBCATS TIES FIRST BASEBALL GAME

On Wednesday afternoon the Bobcats played the Gifford Tigers from Gifford, Florida on the LSH baseball diamond. This was both teams' first conference game that ended with a score 2-2. The game was scoreless in the first two innings. The Gifford Tigers managed to get one man on base by a single which brought in a man from third base. The game went on with the Tigers leading by one point until the bottom of the fourth.

The Tigers led the top of the fifth inning with a single and a walk. The next Tiger's hit was intercepted by the pitcher who in turn made a wild throw to first that tied the scores. The game was called at the bottom of the fifth inning due to darkness, with a score of 2-2.

James Haynes, a Lake Shore High School tenth grade student artist, demonstrates many of his skills while preparing a piece of art to be presented at The NEA Show in the nation's capitol March 30-April 30.

This exhibit serves as a special feature of Teaching Career Month. Haynes work is expressive of the "Teach Me!" theme. After the NEA Show, all entries will continue to be used in different ways. Some of the art work will be sent on tour to countries overseas in the Red Cross International national Art Exhibit.
